USCIS Service Center Tips, Jurisdictions, and Contact Information

Petitions should be sent to either the California Service Center (CSC) or Vermont Service Center (VSC) based on the U.S. state or territory where the petitioner's company or organization's primary office is located, rather than where the work will take place. As of October 12, 2017, Texas-based petitioners have been directed to send I-129 packages to the California Service Center. Earlier this year, petitions for beneficiaries with work for a single employer to be done in Florida, Georgia, or North Carolina were directed to send I-129 packages to CSC, but now this, too, is to be determined based upon the location of the petitioner's primary office location. If the petitioner's primary location is in Florida, Georgia, North Carolina, or Texas, I-129 packages should be sent to CSC.

Filing for Temporary Employment or Training in More Than One Location

When the temporary employment or training will be in different locations within the same U.S. state or territory, or in different U.S. states or territories, the state where the petitioner's company or organization's primary office is located will still be used to determine where the petitioner should file the Form I-129 package, regardless of the beneficiary's work location(s). For example, if the beneficiary will work or receive training in two or more different locations in the state of Arizona, and the petitioner's company's primary office is in New York, file Form I-129 with the VSC. If the beneficiary will work or receive training in a location in Arizona and in another location in Florida, and the petitioner's company's primary office is in New York, file Form I-129 with the VSC.

Listing Your Organization's Primary Address

The petitioner's company or organization's primary office should be listed in Part 1, Question 3.

Starting November 11, 2017, USCIS may reject Form I-129s that are filed at the wrong service center, and please note that P.O. boxes may not be used for a petitioner's primary address.

Refer to the USCIS website on direct filing addresses for the Form I-129 for complete details.
